The proprietor of the Cache of Sweets is the papa of a new born son. Now why didn't James Miltenberger stay on as owner a few weeks longer. If we could have made that kind of an announcement for him it would surely have been news.

Groceries took a big drop Tuesday over at Market Basket and the OPA had nothing to do with it. Just a high stack of Milton's canned goods deciding they were too high and crashed against a partition which knocked over a few dozen cans and bottles on the shelves. The proprietor was little disturbed, considereding the noise, but some of the lady shoppers jumped half way across the store..

Mrs. John Marshall sends her M.O. and a letter to the News this week. She is one of our older and highly respected citizens who dearly loves Ocean Beach. She says: "I see your newspaper is going good. I hope to return and see all our old friends when the war is over and do hope that will be soon." Mrs. Marshall is with relatives in Memphis, Tenn., and we send regards and wish her a cheerful winter season.

One of our pastors was trying to contact a certain high school principal of this vicinity last week by phone and the principal had been having considerable trouble getting his messages through the school switchboard that day so was exasperated more than a little. He had been refused the sixth call out and said "Oh Lord" just about the time Rev. Jim was plugged in. Rev. Jim says: "That's just who is calling brother, what can I do for you?" The balance of the story is "off the record."

J. S. Massey, until recently a resident here with his family, writes us from Chester, Pa., to give a new street address. Jack writes: "We have been settled about a week now. I expect to go to work for the Sun Oil Co. next week. To date (Oct. 28) I have not been able to work, too much excitement. The folks here have entertained us every night. What a crowd! They really make us feel at home. We went up to Portland, Maine, to see my brother. It was quite a reunion. I had not seen him in 34 years. My brother took us to Saco, Maine, and we had a baked lobster dinner and somehow I thought of Mrs. H. and the rattlesnake salad you had down in the valley. Maine was sure beautiful, trees all turning. Really a beautiful sight. We have a nice brick house and the man we bought furniture from has just been elected president of Chester, Pa , Kiwanis, so you see I still patronize Kiwanians I miss the gang Tuesday nights but the folks here say they will not let us get homesick for California. Regards, Jack."

Navy Needs Waves To Save Manpower

Civic and social leaders and other patriotic citizens from virtually every community in San Diego county gathered last Friday in special meeting at San Diego's civic center to hear Rear Admiral I. C. Johnson, Director of Naval Officer Procurement for the 11th Naval district, urge further civilian cooperation in the current inter-county competition for the procurement of WAVES.

Theme of the meeting was establishment of methods to keep San Diego county ahead in the competition with Los Angeles, Orange, Kern, Santa Barbara, Riverside, San Bernardino and Ventura counties in per capita WAVE procurement for the period Oct. 7 to Dec. 7. At the conclusion of the drive, the leading county will receive a special trophy from Admiral Johnson while the last place county will receive a booby prize of a "gold brick."

Admiral Johnson's address made plain the need for more women in the WAVES. "Although the current competition has given impetus to WAVE applications throughout Southern California, more are needed to meet quotas set by the Navy Department," he declared.

Lieut. Comdr. L. D. Blanchard, officer in charge of Navy Recruiting for Southern California, outlined the mechanics of the recruiting competition and asked citizens of each community to do specific recruiting jobs to bolster the WAVE program.

Of the total quota of 1200 WAVES sought in the drive, San Diego must supply 89.

The Song Writer

George McKeon

It was in Sept., 1938, when Mr. and Mrs. George J. McKeon returned to their home in Ocean Beach, after a scenic cruise along the coast of British Columbia. They were honored guests aboard a privately-chartered Alaskan Cruise liner.

Mrs. McKeon, who passed away March, 1942, was known in musical circles as Zilica Rasiano. She was prima donna for several years at National Opera in Bucharest and featured as guest artist before audiences at Biarritz and Buenos Aires.

All of which leads to the interesting career of George McKeon, who since the death of his beautiful wife, has devoted most of his time to writing and in music has found his greatest consolation.

He has written more than one hundred songs since she went on, and says his soul has been enriched by 15 years of wonderful happiness with this glorious singer. Now he is fulfilling a joint destiny and she will live again through his songs which are so much a part of him. His fondest hope is that the world of music may learn to know them.

In World War I, the month the United States declared war on Germany, George McKeon enlisted in the army and was commissioned a lieutenant in the cavalry, but later transferred to the air service where he was rated by his superior officers as "a good, but reckless, flyer." He was honorably discharged at San Diego in 1919, now is in the Air Reserve Corps.

One of the most significant events in George McKeon's life, as a sideline, was voice study. He sang at a few concerts in New York and it was at one of these concerts in 1927, a Russian relief program, that a famous dramatic soprano, the greatest prima donna Rumania ever knew, heard him sing. She had been with the National Opera company of Bucharest and later sang in Paris.

Zilica admitted that George's singing wasn't too good, but she recognized that he had a splendid voice and decided she could teach him how to handle it. There started a friendship that soon blossomed into love and in a few weeks they were married.

"It was one real case of love on sight," George relates. "I knew her 30 minutes when I said 'I have the brilliant idea'; she said 'no, don't say it.' But in three days it was settled."

So after touching on the significant events of George McKeon's life, it is good to know that his ambition for a musical comedy has been started. That songs already written in the popular vein, may be heard on the radio and in the home in the very near future.

He writes spontaneously, while walking along the beach, riding on a bus, to and from his insurance office in San Diego, or from a spoken sentence originating the song, "The Sun Shining on the Diamond Ring."

"The Moon and I Have a Rendezvous" is another good number. "Tap Me on the Shoulder" and "Au Revoir Cherie," written just recently, are already favorites which are sung by Mr. McKeon's friends. His very latest war son "Biddy Was the Captain's Cow," is being penned now, and promises to be a real favorite at all the service camps.

Several musical scores recently sent to New York publishers are receiving criticism, states Mr. McKeon, who has received a letter from the firm.

Civilian Defense---

By ONA E. PITCOCK

On Nov. 3rd the central committee of Civilian Defense held their monthly meeting with Mrs. David A. Fraser, chairman, presiding.

Captain H. H. Ritter, security officer for the 11th Naval district was introduced by Admiral Charles Blakely. Captain Ritter stressed the necessity of all defense organizations remaining on the alert, and urged the women not to let down. He said "The Japanese have been kept at a distance but this is no assurance that they will not try to come back in smal numbers." He also suggested that the Block Plan remain in force during peace times in order to assist in time of emergency.

Vice Admiral Blakely (retired) said in part "There has been no change as far as our community is concerned since Dec. 7th except increase in population. Everything that has happened has happened far away. If we knew the locations of the Japanese aircraft plants as well as they know ours we would be blasting them night and day. Submairnes are a menace to us here. One hundred Japanese could be landed on our coast here, at places like Ocean Beach, and it would be like coming home to them. We would suddenly find our town afire and wonder what had happened. Also their 4-point-7 guns on their subs could wreck a plant like Consolidated.

Verne Parker, executive officer, U. S. Citizens Defense Corps said: "The suspension of the dimout regulations has hurt Civilian Defense. Of course the control of the sea by the Navy is better than a year ago. Entire conditions have improved in general. In suspending Proclamation No. 19," the General states "All shieldings that cannot be replaced in 24 hours must not be removed." The lifting of the dimout does not make sense. At a time when we are over-taxed for power-service, and coal strikes makes a shortage of power—we lift the dimout. We were getting along beautifully. No improvement can be expected in street lighting as it could not be replaced in 24 hours. In the case of the filter stations or center, it was wise to admit we had something better. This foolproof devise now used has removed the element of human error from the aircraft warning service. We now are better protected than we ever have been.

Mr. Nichols, member of the salvage committee said, "We fell short last year by 15 millions of tons of scrap. We must have it. The 11th, 12th, 13th and 14th of this month will be metal scrap week. There will be no curb service so please phone M-9070 and report scrap. Many wondered why the scrap remained in the yards so long after the last drive. It is necessary as the metal must be collected and amount reported and it is then fed to the mills in a constant flow as needed.

Take your waste paper here in the beach to the chicken-wire market front on Newport ave., between Bacon and Abbott sts., or make one pile in each block and on Mondays it will be picked up. Call Mrs. Orrick, B-6121, for further information. Boy scouts will collect your waste paper and will receive $8 a ton for the papers. Paper and metal are badly needed, please save them.

If you wish to write to a Marine that is stationed overseas, you can send 100 words or less to the Public Relations Officer at No. 1 Montgomery st., San Francisco, Calif., and it will be forwarded. Print name and address.

Monday at 10 o'clock a meeting was held at the Church of God on Ebers st. Admiral Blakely was guest speaker. All who attended were high in praise of his talk.

You are all busy with your Thanksgiving and Christmas duties but I do wish you would not forget; our boys may fight all day and not know it is Christmas.

Please buy War Bonds or do something to help our boys and not spend money foolishly as many are doing. Make this a happy Christmas for our boys still at home as it may be their last Christmas with us.

All wool from our Red Cross knitted here goes to the Aleutians. You can help to make life a little more comfortable for our service men stationed there by getting yarn at the Ocean Beach unit, 4769 Del Monte ave., and knitting a scarf, a helmet, knee warmers, toe socks, etc., or making a jeep robe. We have pajamas that are badly in need of being sewed also bedside bags to hold toilet articles, etc. Please come and see what you can do to help.

You are falling behind with your grease. Just remember we here on the west coast may need some of the bullets your waste fats would make.

Please phone your block and sector meetings to B-5639 for the paper. We want to show what an active district we are.

Now for the best news of all: At the last central committee meeting Mrs. David A. Fraser, our beloved leader, was presented a 5000 hour service ribbon by Adm. Blakely. This was the first ribbon to be given in San Diego to the Civilian Corps. Adm. Blakely stated that this was the highest award that could be given and praised the loyal, constant and devoted service that Mrs. Fraser has given for the last two years. Mrs. Fraser accepted the ribbon, not for herself, but for the women of the Block Plan. Now isn't that just like her. She who has done so much and through such trying circumstances. Let us all try to follow in her footsteps and be as faithful in keeping our oath. By so doing we will be better men and women.

Two Planes Fail Pilots One Flyer Killed In Air

One pilot was killed in mid-air and another parachuted to safety when two army P-38 fighter planes developed trouble over the Loma Portal district yesterday morning and crashed to earth, one a few feet from a home.

A flight of four planes was maneuvering when the dive started by the plane of 1st Lt. Verne Yahne, flight leader.

Something apparently went wrong with Yahne's plane and he bailed out, landing in the bay, where he was picked up unhurt. The pilot of the other plane, also in trouble, baled out, but his plane, zooming crazily in the air, struck him, severing his legs.

His plane, fluttering to earth with but one wing, crashed sidewise into a landscaped canyonside a few feet from the home of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Pearson, of 2205 Locust st., caught fire and set adjacent brush afire.

The body of the pilot landed on a knoll, near Udal and Sterne sts. One of his legs was found about 150 feet from the crash scene and army crews were seeking the other limb.

Name of the killed pilot was withheld pending notification of his next of kin.

Brush Fires Disastrous In Southern California

The most disastrous fires to visit San Diego county in several years happened during the past week when 38 different fires were reported as having broken out last Sunday. In the Dulzura-Jamul-Otay and San Miguel sectors forestry officials estimated 35,000 acres had been burned over. A great deal of damage was also done in the Lake Hodges-Del Dios-Rancho Santa Fe area where 9,500 acres were reported burned over.

A serious fire also burned out a number of homes in Tia Juana river valley on the Mexican border.

The southland generally suffered with losses reported as much as a million and a half dollars, monetary losses being highest near Los Angeles. Sections where many homes were destroyed were Newhall, Topanga Canyon, Idylwild and other areas of the San Jacinto mountains.

Near Lake Hodges some valuable homes were burned out and also Rancho Santa Fe.

Monday morning the famous Kenilworth Inn at Ramona, San Diego back country hostelry, was entirely destroyed in a fire which was believed started from a defective oil heater. In 30 minutes the entire two-story structure was in ruins. All that remained of the $75,000 building was the four stone walls.. It was built in 1888 and was a famed eating place, and fine poultry of the back country was served.

During the outbreak fires were reported at Dulzura, Hollenbeck canyon, Rancho Santa Fe, El Cajon valley, Winterwarm, Santa Ysabel, Cuyamaca, Encinitas, Carlsbad, Lake Hodges, Orange Glen, Sorrento, Buckman Springs and numerous other locations, all in San Diego county.

All fires have now been reported as under control or extinguished.

Give Blood For Plasma Honoring Son's Birthday

No week passes at the Red Cross blood donor center at Columbia and Beech without an outstanding heart interest story: an incident that wins the interest and admiration of the staff of nurses and administrative workers.

This last week the signal event was a birthday party. The party was given by Mrs. Ida May Carpenter of 4318 Texas st., and was attended by two of her sons, Glenn, employed by a local aircraft company, and Ernest, with the merchant marine.

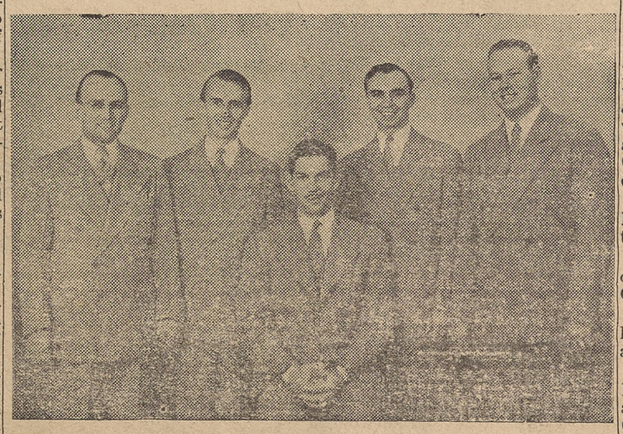

They celebrated the twentieth birthday of a third son, Don, who is on duty in the Hawaiian islands with the signal corps. Their presents, in his honor, were their donations of blood to be processed into plasma

Dr. J. Richmond Barbour Tells Educational Changes

Dr. J. Richmond Barbour, coordinator of the San Diego city schools, was guest speaker at Ocean Beach Kiwanis Tuesday evening with L. L. Bloomenshine, principal Point Loma high school, as program chairman. The speaker was principal of Ocean Beach elementary school some 10 years ago and a member of the local group, so had many friends who welcomed him here.

Dr. Barbour in his talk, commemorating American Education Week, said processes of instruction in our public schools today were much different than 30 years ago. Scientific means now applied are by a trial method whereby different methods are used in teaching and the one in which a group of students makes the best progress, is selected and used until better means are found.

In teaching writing, the most recent method adopted is for youngsters of the first grade to print letters and words, then in the second grade and later to write by finger movement, this means believed to be the most natural and best.

In spelling, the school takes less words but adhere to those most used, instead of a pupil endeavoring to learn a lot of words that will be little used later on. Arithmetic, Barbour said, the system has not changed much, though there are some modifications in instruction. Geography is on a wider and global basis, reaching out farther over the earth than ever before.

Warren Burdine was a guest of B. S. Mills.

Directors Eected for 1944

Directors elected to serve the club during the coming year were Rev. James F. Roberts, Heber Hartvigsen, Frank B. McElwee, Rolling Reed, Burritt S. Mills, Milton Lancaster and Martin Murphy.

Previously elected officers are Glen Jones, president; Jerry H. Sullivan, vice-president; Henry H. Holman, treasurer.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Allies Prepare Heavy Blows in Italy; Jugo-Slav Guerrillas Threaten Nazis Despite Outbreaks of Factional War; New Cattle Subsidy Plan Is Announced

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

Riding in jeep, Gen. Dwight Eisenhower (left) and Lieut. Gen. Mark Clark pause during front line tour to chat with British soldiers on Bren gun carrier.

EUROPE:
Prepare Attack in Italy

Lieut. Gen. Mark Clark's Fifth army edged into position for a grand assault upon the Germans' new defenses along the 2,500-foot high Massico ridge in southern Italy, while the Nazis prepared to meet the charge by massing artillery and mortars on the front.

On the Adriatic side of the battleline to the east, Gen. Bernard Montgomery's Eighth army also drew up into position for the next big blow by crossing the short Trigno river at several points.

Meanwhile there were indications that the Germans might be planning a strong counter-offensive of their own somewhere in central Italy. Allied reconnaissance reported the steady flow of Nazi troops and materiel from the north toward the battle zone. No such counter-offensive was expected, however, unless the Germans' defense weakened Allied attackers and drew them into open country where Tank Specialist Erwin Rommel could maneuver armor.

Nazis Fight Guerrillas

Pesky guerrilla activity in Jugo-Slavia commanded the attention of the Germans, with Marshal Rommel dispatching strong mechanized forces to quell the armed bands disrupting communications and destroying industrial plants.

But the effectiveness of Jugo-Slav guerrillas was threatened by another outbreak of factional dissension between the forces of King Peter's government and the new so-called "freedom army" of Tito Broz, which recently was organized and has fought independently.

While the two political organizations reportedly have been harassing the Germans from one end of Jugoslavia to the other, they also have been accusing one another of collaborating with the Nazis. Broz' faction sentenced 17 persons to death for such collaboration, including a former Jugo-Slav general.

In attempting to wipe out the two guerrilla armies, the German armored columns drove into the hilly country to which Jugo-Slav riflemen retire for cover.

TAXES:
Plan 2 Billion More

Opposed to any form of sales tax, the house ways and means committee was prepared to report a new tax bill for congressional approval, yielding only two billion dollars of revenue instead of the 10½ billion dollars asked by the treasury.

Of the two billion dollars, 600 million would be raised by new liquor taxes. Levies on spirits would be boosted to $10 a gallon, on beer to $8 per barrel, and on wine from five cents to $1 a gallon.

Other revenue would be obtained by increasing postal rates to three cents on local mail, air-mail to 10 cents an ounce, money orders 10 to 37 cents, insured mail 10 to 70 cents, and COD mail 24 cents to $2.40. General admissions would be raised to three cents for every 10 cents; electric light bulbs and tubes would be taxed to 15 per cent of the retail price, and there would be a levy of 20 per cent of the charge on bowling, and $20 per billiard table.

If a sales tax were enacted, the CIO had warned that it would demand wage increases to cover additional purchase costs.

CATTLE:
New Subsidy

To stabilize livestock prices at present market levels, the government announced a new subsidy plan for processors and slaughterers.

Under the program, subsidies of 50 cents will be paid on common cattle selling between $10 and $11 per hundredweight, and for cutter and canner classes ranging from $7.45 to $8.45 per hundredweight.

For good grade cattle selling between $14.25 to $15.25 per hundredweight, a $1.45 subsidy will be paid, while for medium class stock bringing from $12 to $13, a 90 per cent grant will be made. To discourage production of choice to prime beef, a subsidy of $1 will be paid on grades from $15 to $16 per hundredweight.

To slaughterers who do not process by-products, a new subsidy of 80 cents per hundredweight was established. Slaughterers buying cattle below or above the stated prices will have their subsidies reduced by a similar amount.

PACIFIC:
New Blows

While Lieut. Gen. George C. Kenney's air force continued pounding Japanese outposts in the Southwest Pacific, Admiral Chester W. Nimitz promised the seizure of islands which would give the U. S. fleet control of the enemy's home waters.

Adm. Nimitz

No sooner had Admiral Nimitz, as commander in chief of the Pacific fleet, made his statement than it was reported that U. S. forces opened a drive on the Japs' last important stronghold of Bougainville in the Solomons by landing on Mono island to the south of the big base.

Gen. Kenney

Aiming at feeder points which have been supplying Jap positions in the Southwest Pacific, Lieutenant General Kenney's airmen have pulverized such strategic shipping centers as Rabaul on New Britain island, on which 500 tons of bombs were dumped in a five-day period.

PAY BOOST:
Offered Miners

With 48,000 miners out on wildcat strikes, the United Mine Workers policy committee was summoned to meet for consideration of the War Labor board's proposal for granting the nation's 550,000 miners a $1.12½ daily wage boost.

The WLB's proposal differed from the contract drawn between the Illinois Coal Operators and the UMW under which the miners would receive a $1.50 daily pay increase, with compensation for underground travel time.

Acceptance of the WLB proposal would result in wage increases of as much as $10 per week for 46½ hours, it was said, while it was feared rejection would lead to a general mine strike with presidential intervention.

HIGHLIGHTS . . . in the week's news

ORE: Low-grade mines producing metals other than iron and copper were ordered closed down by the War Production board. Officials explain that production of several vital metals has outstripped the need. Premium prices to some mine owners were withdrawn, and imports of some ores banned. Hardest hit are "war baby" mines yielding bauxite, lead, chrome and molybdenum.

FRUIT: The air lines will haul fresh fruit in quantity after the war, predicts Sigmund Janas, president of Colonial Airlines. He believes that this swift transportation will eliminate the need of heavy packing and icing.

NORMANDIE: The former French luxury liner, the Normandie, has been completely refitted and turned over to the navy.

Marines Celebrate 168th Birthday—Fighting

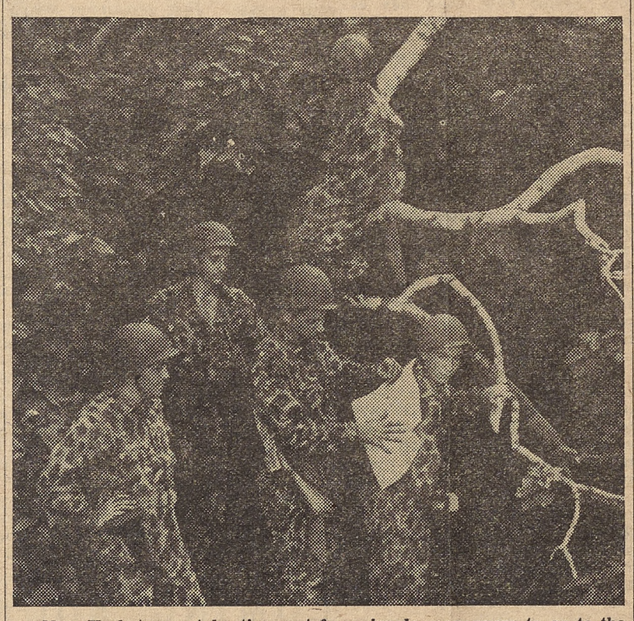

"In the air, on land, and sea" the men of the United States marine corps are fighting at America's battlefronts over the world as they celebrate their 168th birthday. Left: On Guadalcanal marine artillery experts shell a Japanese position. Their weapon is a 75-mm. pack howitzer, a favorite with marines because of its mobility. Center: Lieut. Gen. Right: On a lonely hill overlooking one of the numerous Alaskan inlets, a marine machine gun crew is on the alert for any attempted landing by enemy troops.

'Khaki Farmers' Help Gather Matanuska Harvest

The American spirit of co-operation is clearly in evidence at Matanuska Valley, Alaska, where soldiers from nearby camps are helping farmers harvest the bumper 1943 potato crop. Top left: Soldiers operate the community's unique digging machine designed by the farmers which digs potatoes, sorts them from the dirt, and drops the spuds in sacks. Top right: Two soldiers aid a farmer load sacks of potatoes onto his truck. Bottom: Nestled in the valley is the town of Palmer. Its main street is pictured here.

New York Yanks Vote in Panama Jungle

Von Csata of Hungary on the Spot

As the United Nations press back German troops on all fronts, as Allied raids over Naziland increase daily, and as native populations of Hitler's satellite countries revolt openly, puppet leaders of these little nations are constantly on the spot. Gen. Ludwig von Csata of Hungary is pictured explaining something to Hitler.

Household Hints

Rub salt inside a fowl before adding stuffing for better seasoning.

Water spots can often be removed from polished furniture by rubbing lightly with turpentine applied on a soft cloth. Wipe dry and rewax.

Shingle roofs should be kept well painted or stained as a protection against destruction by the elements and to insure against the developments of expensive and difficult-to-find leaks.

After yarn has been steamed for removing kinks, wind it on a cake rack. It is not only easier to handle that way, but can readily be hung on the line to dry.

Hanging racks on cupboard doors are one solution to the need for additional storage space.

Drafts caused by air entering under baseboards can be eliminated by tacking felt weatherstripping under the quarter-round.

A fragrant pot of coffee and a few tasty cookies can do the job of entertaining that a dinner once did if there's a spirit of friendliness and plenty of good conversation.

Keep Up Morale, Entertain Simply Even in Wartime

Even if all foods were rationed I'd still say, don't ration hospitality for we need friendly get-togethers, the refreshment and relaxation that being with one's friends gives.

Dinners or entertainments with stupendous foods are out of style at least for the present, but that doesn't mean you can't invite people over for a steaming cup of hot coffee and a few simple but tasty cookies. And, if you want to do things more elaborately, why, it's quite the thing to ask Mrs. Jones to bring over an extra supply of sugar or butter or canned goods if she has them—and is willing to share.

Some time ago progressive dinners were quite the fashion. Now again they can become fun. The plan is to serve, let's say three courses, and have each course at a separate home. It's a good idea to have the homes within short walking distance of each other. Serve soup or fruit cocktail at first home, the main course at the next home, and then have dessert and entertainment at the third home. Or, after dessert, the group can plan to go to a movie or concert or to attend some sport in season.

And now for the business of food—with a few points or none at all. Here are cake and cookie recipes which are the cream of the current crop:

Applesauce Cake.
(No Icing Needed!)

- 1 cup sugar
- ¼ cup shortening
- 1 cup applesauce
- 1 egg
- 1 teaspoon soda
- 2 tablespoons water
- 1 teaspoon cinnamon
- ½ teaspoon cloves
- ½ teaspoon nutmeg
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- 1 cup raisins
- 1¾ cups cake flour

Cream shortening and sugar. Add applesauce and well-beaten egg. Add soda dissolved in water. Sift dry ingredients and add to mixture. Fold in raisins and bake in a greased square pan in a moderate (350-degree) oven 1 hour.

Honey Oatmeal Wafers.
(Makes 16 wafers)

- 1 egg
- ¼ cup honey
- 1 cup oatmeal
- ⅛ teaspoon salt
- 2 teaspoons melted butter or margarine
- ¼ teaspoon vanilla
- ⅛ cup chopped nutmeats

Beat egg until light. Add honey, continuing to beat. Then fold in remaining ingredients. Drop by spoonfuls, about 2 inches apart on a greased baking sheet. Flatten slightly with a knife dipped in cold water. Bake in a moderate (350-degree) oven about 10 minutes or until a delicate brown.

A nice type of cookie to have on hand during these times is this one for old-fashioned gingersnaps. The recipe makes 10 to 12 dozen "snaps" and the dough keeps indefinitely in the refrigerator so that it can be used and made up into cookies as needed:

Gingersnaps.
(Makes 10 to 12 dozen)

- 1 cup molasses
- ½ cup shortening
- 3¼ cups sifted flour
- 1½ teaspoons salt
- ½ teaspoon soda
- 1 tablespoon ginger

Heat the molasses over low heat to the boiling point. Put the shortening in a large mixing bowl, pour the hot molasses over the shortening. Stir until shortening is melted. Sift the flour, ginger, soda and salt together and add to molasses mixture. Mix thoroughly. Form into rolls on slightly floured waxed paper and chill in refrigerator. Slice very thin and bake on a greased cookie sheet in a hot (425-degree) oven 8 to 10 minutes.

Having friends over for dinner? They'll enjoy this light souffle put together quickly and easily with mushroom soup and chicken.

Chocolate Pinwheels.
(Makes 3½ dozen)

- 1½ cups sifted flour
- ½ teaspoon double-acting baking powder
- ⅛ teaspoon salt
- ½ cup butter or margarine
- ½ cup sugar
- 1 egg yolk, unbeaten
- 3 tablespoons milk
- 1 square unsweetened chocolate, melted

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt, and sift again.

Cream butter until light, add sugar gradually and cream together until light and fluffy. Add egg yolk and beat well. Add flour alternately with milk, mixing well after each addition. Divide dough into two parts. To one part, add chocolate and blend. Chill dough until firm enough to roll. Roll each half into a rectangular sheet, ⅛ inch thick, and place chocolate sheet on top. Then roll as for jelly roll. Chill overnight or until firm enough to slice. Cut into eight-inch slices. Bake on an ungreased baking sheet in hot oven (400 degrees) 5 minutes or until done.

A delicious souffle with a few piping hot biscuits and honey makes a lovely dinner for a chilly night. Simple though it is, it will satisfy your company well:

Thrifty Souffles.
(Serves 6)

- 3 tablespoons quick-cooking tapioca
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 1 can mushroom soup
- 1 cup chopped chicken
- 3 egg yolks, beaten until thick and lemon-colored
- 3 egg whites, beaten stiff

Combine tapioca, salt and mushroom soup, of consistency to serve, in top of double boiler. Place over rapidly boiling water and cook 8 to 10 minutes after water boils again, stirring frequently. Add chicken and stir until mixed. Cool slightly while beating eggs. Add egg yolks and mix well. Fold into egg whites. Turn into greased baking dish. Place in a pan of hot water and bake in a moderate (250-degree) oven 50 minutes or until souffle is formed.

What are your problems in rationing? Write to Lynn Chambers for expert answers, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope for your reply, at Western Newspaper Union, 210 South Desplaines Street, Chicago, Illinois.

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

Lynn Says:

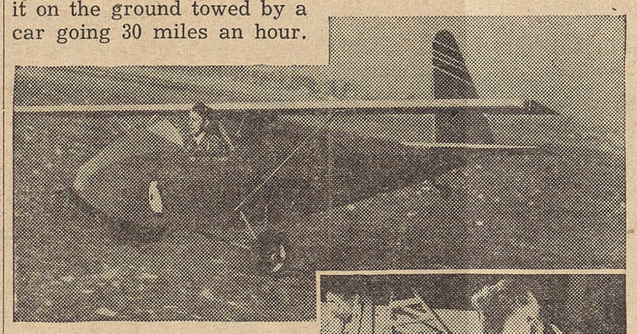

Hospitality Unrationed: Even if you're doing your entertaining in the kitchen you can do it up right! Use a gay checkered cloth as the background for your table, and a wooden chopping bowl as the centerpiece for fall flowers or highly polished fruits. Set candles in small squashes.

Have everyone help with the dishes after supper and then play old-fashioned games such as slogan contests, food favorites of famous people, food favorites of the family, scramble names of kitchen utensils and have guests unscramble them.

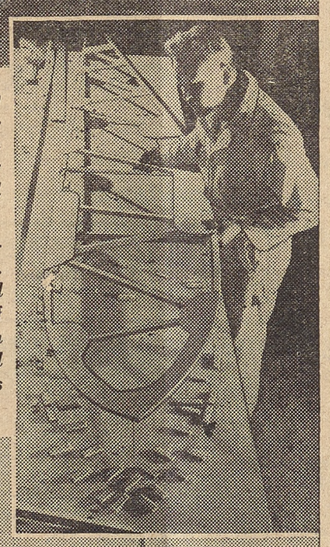

For children's parties, have Mother Goose theme. Children can come dressed as a Mother Goose character and for entertainment have the child read the rhyme he represents.

Juvenile Fliers Learn Tricks Of Air Currents on Ground

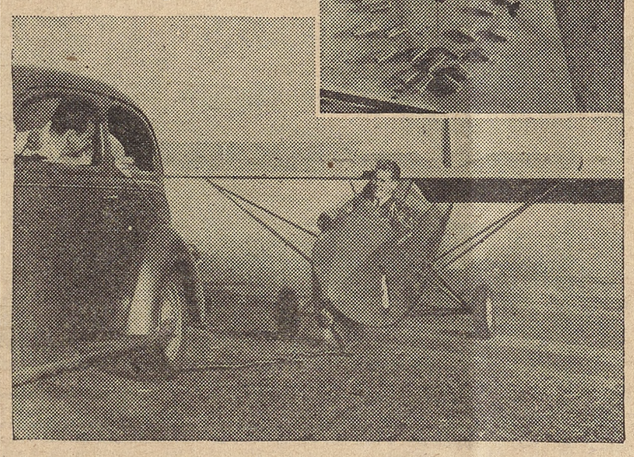

Schoolboys may be too young to fly real airplanes for their country, but they want to learn the principles of aviation in a manner which approaches the thrill of the real thing. A California glider company and Aeronautical Engineer Volmar Jensen have created a preflight glider which brings youngsters plenty of thrills and a basic flying technique without risking their necks. With the glider, schoolboys learn to keep a steady course through rushing air currents. They do it on the ground towed by a car going 30 miles an hour.

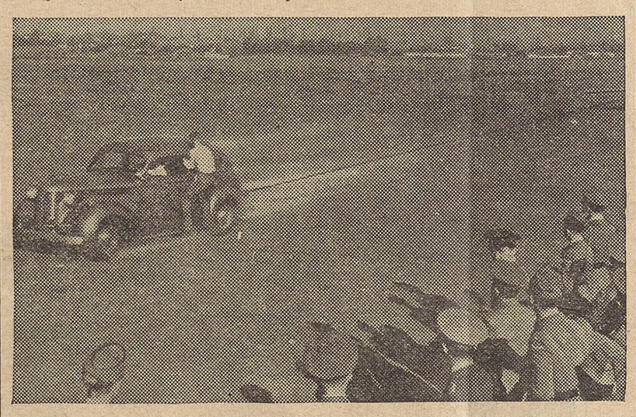

Breezing along behind the tow car, the cadet above tries to prevent the glider's wing tips from scraping the ground. Perfectly controlled, the glider will roll smoothly with tail up.

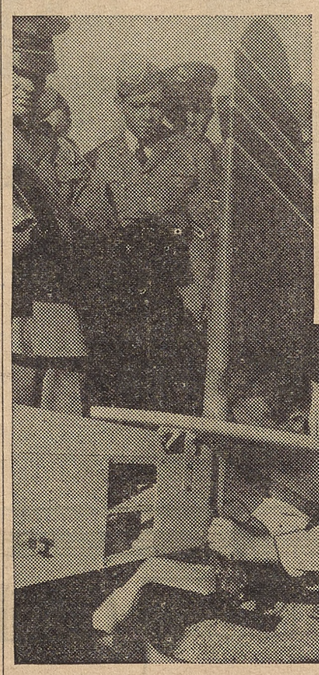

Right: Use of these jigs simplifies construction of the glider. Wood parts are fitted in, nailed and glued. The glider is made of non-priority materials and can be assembled by school manual training classes. A control stick is connected to wings and tail.

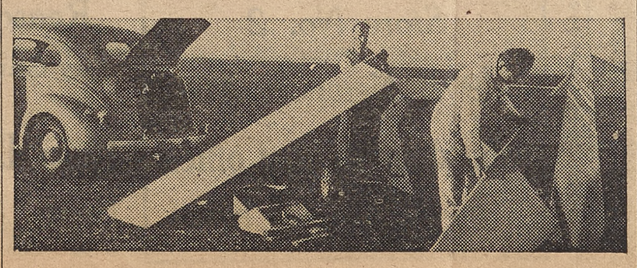

Ready to match his technique against air currents, the student, above, informs the automobile driver that he is ready. Tow car pulls away and the 100 foot line is jerked taut.

The glider zooms past an assembly of fellow students. Despite rushing air, it is level. The operator is controlling its balance, something that any pilot must master before he takes to the air.

Below: Volmar Jensen attaches the rudder to the tail. He built several safety devices into the craft to eliminate the usual risks of preliminary glider instruction. Any ideas that the non-ascending gliders were "sissified" were soon dispelled. It was quite difficult to keep a level course at a speed of 30 miles an hour. But most of them soon mastered this technique.

Wings and rudder are removable for transportation purposes.

Calves Get Fat

Calves born in May and grazed on moderately used pastures are 50 to 90 pounds heavier in November than similar calves on heavily used ranges.

Wild Rice

Wild rice that grows in marshlands from Canada to the Gulf of Mexico is quite different from the cultivated rice of the Gulf coast and California. A natural food for waterfowl, it was a favorite of American Indian tribes and is popular with gourmets as game-dinner fare. The market crop is hand-gathered in Canada and northern United States. The plant is distantly related to cultivated rice.

Army Insurance

A recent check of troops departing for foreign duty indicates that more than 98 per cent of such military personnel have purchased National Service Life Insurance for an average amount of more than $9,500.

Keep Clothes Fit

Keep your clothes fit: Choose the right fabric for the purpose. Air clothing frequently and use dress shields to prevent harmful effects on fabric from either perspiration or the deodorant you use.

Make Soil Friable

Other things than humus are useful in making clay soil friable. Pulverized limestone, wood ashes, hard coal ashes, sand and even cinders will serve. Much is accomplished by tillage.

Good Reminder

A bulletin board placed on the kitchen wall and used for interfamily reminders and messages is helpful in many households.

Southeast a Thunder Area

The eastern Gulf states usually have the greatest number of thunder storms, with a yearly average of 60 thunder storm days.

Make Vanity Stool

Chances are you don't own a cheese box, those big wooden drums well over a foot in diameter. Your grocer will have one. Put in a bid for one and make a vanity stool with a gay petticoat, a toy box, gay hat box, hassock or clever magazine rack of it.

Nuts Rich in Food

Nuts have protein that can help spare the meat. They are rich in phosphorus too, and most varieties furnish a comparable amount of the "appetite" vitamins of the B group that make for all-round good health and vitality.

Fertilize Fish Pond

Mixed fertilizers are being scattered over fish ponds to stimulate growth of the succulent plant material on which fish can thrive and grow to greater size.

Raker, Cutting Teeth

A cross-cut saw cuts much faster and easier if the raker teeth are filed only 1-64th of an inch shorter than the cutting teeth.

Protects Seed

When seed is sown, or plants set out in the fall in ground which has been newly spaded, a mulch put over the soil after it has frozen to keep the frost in, is usually advisable. It helps prevent winter thaws which might heave the plants out of the ground, or uncover the seed.

All-Purpose Ration Book

Printing of the country's new all-purpose ration books will take 87,000 pounds of ink, 7,500 pounds of paste, half a million pounds of boxing.

Shingled Roof Dangerous

A flammable wood-shingle roof is one of the fire hazards to be found on many farms. Not only are they set afire by sparks falling from a faulty chimney, but they can also be ignited by wind-blown sparks from bonfires, brush fires or forest fires.

Pipe Line Speed

The oil in "Big Inch" pipe line moves at an average speed of 4.5 miles an hour and requires about 14 days to travel from Texas to New Jersey.

Freedom's Flag

'Tis freedom that hath born thee,
And tho shot and shell have torn thee
No tyrant dared to scorn thee
But thou hast justly sealed his doom.
Thou art freedom's flag forever.
Thou hast sanctioned conquest never,
And there is no force can sever
Nor take thy power to banish Europe's gloom,

And thy sons will ever follow
This boast is far from hollow
Thou wilt make Dictators swallow
All the poison they have tried to feed the world

Then 'mid scenes of blood abhoring
And 'mid guns incessant roaring;
With thy power forever soaring,
'Til back to Hell these fiends all you've hurled.

In Democracy's great battle,
Let the propagandists prattle.
Thou wilt herd the German cattle,
Drive autocracy completely off the earth.

Then with characteristic kindness,
And a glorious open-mindedness;
Thou wilt wash away their blindness,
That a new World Democracy may have its birth.

NO ARMISTICE

Since that celebrated Armistice Day 25 years ago, the civilized world has learned a great deal—learned the hard way, by object lessons.

One of the major lessons illustrated and reiterated is that there must be no armistice this time. The enemy must be brought to unconditional surrender.

Defeat on the battlefield is not enough. There must be no super-man myth left for a demagogic successor of Hitler's to use to fan the martial spirit of the Germans into flames again. The United Nations must strive to extirpate for all time the German war-machine—and the perverted philosophy that feeds and nourishes it. German war industries must be razed and never be permitted to rebuild. And the Teuton war lords who have lived by the sword must die by it.

TROUBLE AT TULE LAKE

When the Army took over control at Tule Lake Segregation Center where 15,000 disloyal Japanese have been congregated from all over the country, citizens of this entire area breathed a little easier.

Fifteen thousand Japs—or even 1500 Japs—who hate this country with a fanatic hatred, can do a lot of damage if uncontrolled. And it is evident that at Tule Lake they have not been controlled. Some of the internees there are of a caliber not to be managed by civilian social workers. They are trouble-makers of the worst type, bent on creating "incidents" that Tojo can use to feed his propaganda mill.

Attention Taxpayer

There are several points to which I am drawing the taxpayer's attention at this time:

If you have not by now received a tax bill on your home and real estate holdings, let us know at once, giving legal description of properties and, of course, your proper address.

Recent purchasers of property not having received a tax bill should request same. We may not have either the new owner's name or address.

Check your tax bills to see that you have them all now and before paying.

Pay now if possible, rather than forget and if mailing, do not mail later than Dec. 3 so as to avoid any delay in delivery and be assured your letter is not postmarked later than Dec. 5.

Both first and second installments of taxes may be paid at this time. Many do.

Mailing not later than Dec. 3 is very important—if mailed late Dec. 4, Dec. 5 is Sunday and your letter may not be postmarked until Dec. 6.

AMERICAN HEROES
BY LEFF

Three Japs killed with one bullet was the score of Marine Pfc. Nicholas Sileo while defending a small village somewhere in the South Pacific. Sileo dropped the trio as they approached Indian file and then bagged two more before the swarming little men's rifle fire put him out of commission and he had to be hospitalized. Our boys are making the best use of the ammunition which you help buy when you invest in War Bonds. Help pass them more of it.

Peace-Time Photos Help Allied Airmen in Raids

About 8,000,000 photographs and motion pictures taken by American and British tourists in enemy and enemy-held countries during peace years have been donated to the Armed Forces of the Allied Nations to help them identify landmarks, says Pathfinder.

Many have proved very useful, particularly the snapshot from which RAF bombers were able to recognize and destroy the Axis headquarters in Sicily, a hotel in Taormina, just before the invasion of the island.

When the soldier talks about "the skipper" he means his captain, the head of his company. And that's just what the title "captain" means. It comes from the Latin word "caput" meaning "head." Another leader high in the Army man's favor is Camel cigarettes—they're first choice with men in the Army. (Based on actual sales records from service men's own stores.) When you're sending gifts from home, keep in mind that a carton of cigarettes is always most welcome. And though there are Post Office restrictions on packages to overseas Army men, you can still send Camels to soldiers in the U. S., and to men in the Navy, Marines, and Coast Guard wherever they are.—Adv.

See Here, Private Hargrove!

by Marion Hargrove

W.N.U. SERVICE

THE STORY SO FAR: Private Marion Hargrove, former feature editor of the Charlotte (N. C.) News, has been inducted into the army and completed the first few weeks of his training at Fort Bragg. Before getting into the army, Hargrove advises selectees to "paint the town red." Once in, "the first three weeks are the hardest" so keep "an open mind." Hargrove has had plenty of trouble learning the fundamentals of army life and as a result has spent a good share of his time on KP duty. Classified as a cook he thinks it's good experience. His sergeant doesn't agree. Hargrove has learned a large portion of army slang and is about to enlighten the civilian on this score.

CHAPTER VI

When Junior comes home from camp on furlough or for the weekend, he probably will throw out his chest, pull his shoulders almost out of joint, and speak a sort of jargon entirely unintelligible to you. There is no cause for alarm; Junior is merely exaggerating to show off his familiarity with military life.

You will not be consoled by this knowledge when he begins speaking this unknown tongue. In order to understand some of his conversation, you might tear out this page and tuck it away in the drawer with your recipes and patterns.

Goldbricking is an Army term signifying in a word, loafing. In its strictest sense, it means avoiding your fair share of the work, thus making the load harder for the other boys. When Junior uses the term, however, it merely means hiding from the work in the first place or stretching an easy job out to make it last as long as possible.

Batting the breeze is the military equivalent of "bullshooting."

Police, as nearly as it can be explained, means "to clean up" or "to keep clean." Examples are kitchen police, or kaypee, canteen police, and police the area.

Fatigue duty is work that is not actual military training, but a part of the turnabout method of getting the dirty work done. Fatigue clothes are the blue denims worn for extra duty. Regular uniforms are called OD's, an abbreviation for "olive drab."

GI is short for "Government Issue." GI soap is the yellow laundry soap, a GI brush is a hard-bristle scrubbing brush, and a GI haircut is the regulation style which sacrifices two-thirds of Junior's wavy locks to cleanliness and sanitation.

The PX is the post exchange, or canteen, a co-operative enterprise which sells practically everything the soldier needs. Three times a month, canteen books of credit tickets may be obtained in denominations from one to five dollars. Ten per cent of the proceeds from these are returned to the battery fund, which is used to buy nonessentials for the battery.

The old man is the battery commander, who may also be referred to among yourselves as the BC or the skipper. The top kick is a first sergeant, the chief of the battery's noncommissioned officers.

Jawbone is an apt word meaning "credit." A Jawbone corporal is an acting corporal, who has neither the rating nor the pay of a corporal.

Over the hill is an artistic way of referring to unauthorized absence. This is another expression for AWOL.

Food is chow or mess. Stew is slum or slumgullion. Salt pork, which you rarely see in the Army,

"Over the hill is an artistic way of referring to unauthorized absence —AWOL."

is called lamb chop. "They lam it against the wall to get the salt out of it and then they chop it up into the beans."

To fall out, soldiers vacate the barracks quickly, before the sergeant gets really mad. To fall in, they take their places in ranks.

A yardbird is the lowest form of animal life in an Army camp. Under the common law, he is rated as one rank below a buck private. The yardbird, for this misdeed or that shortcoming, spends most of his time in menial labor about the battery area.

When Junior refers to a yardbird, you will notice, he is invariably speaking of someone else.

It was our afternoon off and we were lying around in our barracks, too lazy to dress for a movie or a trip to the Service Club. All of us were, that is, except Private Zuber. With an enthusiasm and energy foreign to a cook's afternoon off, Zuber was applying a blinding glaze to his shoes. This finished, he connected an iron and began sharpening the creases in his trousers.

"Going somewhere, I take it," asked Private Clarkin, the Jersey milkman.

Private Zuber grinned happily, and nodded. He donned his fresh clothing, gave his necktie several unnecessary tugs, and combed his hair for the twelfth time.

Private McGlauflin, late of the Minneapolis bar, laid down his copy of the Bartender's Guide and sat up on his bunk. "Didn't you know?" he asked. "Zuber's girl's come down from Rochester. They're going riding."

"That's a fine thing," crowed Clarkin. "I haven't been for a spin since I've been here. Get your shoes on, Hargrove. And straighten your name plate, McGlauflin. We must make a good impression on our guest . . ."

"You sure are a pleasant surprise, ma'am," Clarkin prattled on to the pretty girl in the front seat. "Fancy Ben Zuber even knowing anybody like you. You should see the homely looking things he brings to the dances here."

She smiled a polite thank-you at Clarkin and glanced sharply at Zuber. "I never could even get him to the dances at home," she said. "He wouldn't even look at the girls at all. Would you, dear?"

"No, ma'am," groaned the martyred Zuber, who spent almost all his evening hours writing letters to Rochester.

"Just to look at Ben," said McGlauflin, "you'd never think such a quiet-seeming boy could raise so much devil. It constantly amazes me."

Private Zuber's girl friend's smile was not so spontaneous this time, and there was a baleful gleam in her glance at poor Benjamin. "What have you been doing, dear?" she asked with terrible gentleness.

Private McGlauflin went on glibly. "Tell her about the time you got tight in Fayetteville and tried to take the policeman's hat away from him, Ben!"

The one-girl audience was shocked. Her expression, as she looked at Zuber, was one of anxiety and doubt.

Clarkin began again. "And the terrible fight he had that time—ooof!" McGlauflin gave him a hearty dig in the ribs. To make sure that it had registered and created sufficient horrible curiosity in the feminine mind, he repeated it.

Private Zuber, guiltless but helpless, drooped his shoulders further as the terrible ride continued. "Here's the Service Club, dear," he finally said. "Shall we go in and have something to drink?" He gave the three of us a pathetically beseeching glance.

"They don't sell lemon extract in there, Zuber," I suggested. Clarkin, McClauflin and I exchanged looks that purposed to show a hidden knowledge of another terrible paragraph in the collapse of the soul of Benjamin Zuber.

We sat at a table in the Service Club drinking the sodas our victim bought for us. Clarkin looked long at his glass of water.

"The sight of water," he remarked, "reminds me of what the sergeant was telling Ben last week about daily bathing."

McGlauflin took pity on the innocent Zuber, who was dying for a cause he knew not. "We'll have to be going. We have things to do and I imagine you two young people want to enjoy each other's company."

"Yes," said Zuber's fiancee slowly. "Ben and I have SO much to talk about." Private Zuber shuddered and his shoulders slumped tragically.

"We certainly have enjoyed the afternoon," crowed Clarkin. "Lovely time."

One of the first people I looked up when I went to Charlotte on leave was Ward Beecher Threatt, who writes a column of sorts for the Saturday edition of the Charlotte News.

"Well, Hargrove," began the postcard philosopher, "how's the Army agreeing with you? I've been aching to find out what you've been doing." This was a subtle slam at my column.

"Well, all things considered—" I began.

"Nothing like the Army," said Ward Beecher. "I wouldn't take a million dollars for the time I spent in it. Nobody'd offer me a million anyway. Have you got a rating yet?"

"Well—" I began again.

"Lord, did I have my ups and downs! Got all the way up to sergeant three times and was busted three times—for the good of the service." He paused to light another cigarette and I thought I saw an opening.

"Let me tell you about the trip over," I said. "We left the—"

"We started a crap game on the train," said Threatt, "and I had to wire home for money before I got to Rock Hill. Have you had a payday yet?"

"We'll have one—" I started.

"On that ocean voyage," he broke in. "I went for fourteen days without a cigarette I followed one man all around the boat waiting for him to throw away a butt. Instead of throwing it on the deck, where I could have scooped it, he flung it over the rail. I followed another and just when I thought he'd be ready to throw it away, I asked him for the butt. The son-of-a-gun told me he had three different kinds of colds—and he threw his cigarette over the side. He didn't have another, he said."

"We landed at Brest," he said, "and we had to walk up one of the longest derned hills I've ever seen before we could drop our suitcases. The Frenchmen swarmed around us, selling everything from steamer trunks to fine-toothed combs. Twenty of us boys pooled our pocket money to buy a pack of cigarettes for fifty cents. What are you going to spend your first pay on?"

"Oh, I suppose I'll—"

"First payday I had I went out and bought myself a pack of cigarettes and lay awake almost all night smoking them. Best cigarettes I ever tasted. By the way, how's the food at Fort Bragg?"

"I find it very—"

"Over in France we used to take our drinking water and swap it to the French for wine. It was a toss-up which tasted worse—our water or their wine. Ah, them was the days! Like your uniform?"

"I think it's very—"

"Nothing like the ones we wore. There we were, in the hottest part of the summer, with these woolen

"Over in France we used to take our drinking water and swap it to the French for wine."

OD's, Russian high collars, wrap-around leggins, and all the works. How do you like my costume?"

"Well, confidentially—"

"This field cap ain't the one they issued to me. I lost that one and had to help myself to this one. I wouldn't tell you where I got it. I used to get into more potato-peeling work for not getting this collar fixed right, too. Looks right distinguished, doesn't it?"

I looked at the modernistic clock on Ward Beecher's parlor table. I took my eyes off it quickly, lest he tell me again about how he won it at the firemen's convention.

"Well, Ward," I said, jumpng desperately into a gap in the conversation. "I've enjoyed talking to you about my life in the Army, but I have to get along uptown again. I've got—"

"Sure thing, fellow," said the man of letters; "it certainly is interesting to hear from a soldier in this army. I could listen to you for hours."

When a sergeant tells you that it's the little things in life that are important, he's not just saying it. A sergeant who impresses that one corny slice of homely philosophy upon a rookie's mind is giving him one of the most important lessons of his Army life.

The soldier has a thousand and one small things to remember in his everyday life. Most of these he forgets at least once before a noncom etches them vividly on his mind with kitchen duty.

At retreat, the afternoon inspection of the soldiers, I always check everything before I fall out for the onceover. Are my shoes shined? Is my rifle cleaned and oiled? Is my name plate pinned straight over my left shirt pocket? Can I get by with this morning's shave? Do I need a haircut? Are all my pockets buttoned? When I make sure that everything is as it should be, I sigh with satisfaction and fall out.

The battery assembles in a neat, precise picture of mass formation. The battery commander orders the top kick to "Prepare the battery for inspection!" The top kick opens the ranks and the lines straighten out to perfection. From where I stand, everything looks perfect.

The battery commander begins his inspection. Until he gets almost to me, I feel almost smug to think that for once I've stood retreat and not fallen short somewhere. To bask in my own perfection, I sneak a forbidden peek at my gun and uniform.

Then, to my horror, I see two shiny strands of stainless steel just below my belt—the chain on that dadblasted dollar watch! Your whole day can be spoiled by doodads such as that marring the neatness and simplicity of your uniform. Back to the kitchens, Dulcy!

There's one good thing, however, about forgetting to take off your nonkosher watch chain for retreat, or to put on your leggins for reveille, or to straighten the shoes under your bunk! After the first time, you remember them!

WHATEVER HAPPENED TO OUR 'M' DAY

BILL JONES had a good job, especially for a young man. On graduation from college, with an engineering degree, he had found employment with a large construction concern. He seemed to have an assured future.

Then came the draft law and Bill was listed as 1A. Uncle Sam said he was to go into the army. The pay would be $50 a month with clothes and food. The hours would be whatever part of the 144 of each week might be called for. There would be no overtime. He would be on the job every day and hour unless an army doctor pronounced him ill. He would go where he was told to go and do what he was told to do.

Bill did not object. To defend the country when called upon was a responsibility of citizenship. He gave up a job paying $100 a week and cheerfully accepted the one at $50 a month.

Bill Brown, too, had a job, as a mechanic in a plant making airplanes. It was a good job as measured by standards of that time, paying $35 a week of 48 hours. As the making of airplanes was an essential industry Bill was listed as 4B and told to stay where he was. Because of federal laws, to stay on the job he was forced to join a union, and the plant could work only 40 hours a week. The other 104 hours of each week were at his disposal to do with as he pleased. He did not have to produce a doctor's say-so should he fail to show up for a portion of the prescribed 40 hours. The union he had been forced to join demanded that Bill be paid $50 a week, and later that it be again increased to $60. Then the government decreed that, as a war emergency, he must work 48 hours a week, but that he must be paid time and one-half for the extra eight hours. It added up to $72 a week, approximately $324 a month, in Bill's pay envelope.

Both Bills are citizens of the United States. Both owe to the nation the same obligations of citizenship. While Bill Jones was losing a leg in the battle of Tunisia, Bill Brown, by direction of his union bosses, was out on strike carrying a banner in a picket line, demanding another increase in pay which the government saw to it that he received.

Had the once muchly advertised "M" bill become a law, both Bills would have been drafted. The one to wear a uniform at $50 a month, the other to wear overalls at the $35 a week he was then receiving, and with as many hours work as might be demanded.

That "M" bill, had it become a law, would have drafted the plant as well as Bill Brown, the worker. There would have been no excessive price for the product of the plant, and no profits. It would seem the discarded and forgotten "M" bill would have provided a real democracy of wartime. It would have meant an "allout" war on the part of everybody, but those who seek votes were afraid of what it might do at the polls.

'OTHER FELLOW'S' INCOME IS UP IN WARTIME

THE DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE tells us the average individual income was 24.1 per cent higher in 1942 than in 1941 and 61.5 per cent higher than in 1939. The figures make us feel rich and are undoubtedly correct but it is hard to find the individual who will admit they apply to him. It was the other fellow who received the extra money. By states the highest increase was in Nevada, amounting to 66.8 per cent as between 1941 and '42. The lowest was in New Hampshire, where it was but 8.6 per cent. In the central farming states it ranged between 16.8 per cent in Illinois to 29.9 in Iowa, with a general average in those states of 21.7. Utah topped all agricultural states with 49.6. The government is taking a considerable portion of the increase as additional income taxes. That, with a greater cost of living does not leave most of us with any extra spending money.

WRITING SERVICEMEN

THE POSTMAN brought a letter from an old, old friend. It did not contain much that was news but what a vast amount of pleasure those few lines produced. When we, on the home front, can derive so much enjoyment from a letter, we can realize what the receipt of even a few lines from home means to one of our boys on a far-away battle front.

CONGRESS HAS APPROPRIATED FOR WAR purposes more than twice as much money as has been spent or for which orders have been placed. Should the war end soon the American taxpayer would not bemoan the fact that some of those billions were not used.

THE older woman sometimes has difficulty in finding instructions to make a smart crocheted sleeveless vestee. This one was especially designed for sizes 38-40 and 42. It is comfortable, well-fitted and can be worn in the house in our winter heat-rationed rooms and is equally comfortable for out-of-door wear under a heavy coat. Make it of wool sport yarn in American Beauty, navy blue, brown or dark green.

For complete crocheting instructions for the Larger Woman's Vestee (Pattern No. 5619) sizes include 38-40 and 42, send 16 cents in coins, your name and address and the pattern number.

Due to an unusually large demand and current war conditions, slightly more time is required in filling orders for a few of the most popular pattern numbers.

THIS bag was planned as a gift for someone who was finding days in bed difficult enough without having books, magazines and writing materials scattered about. If you like to take an assortment of reading matter to bed, sick or well, you will enjoy a bag like this. Its hanger hook may be sewed to box springs and there you are with everything handy.

The bag shown here was made of a remnant of heavy cotton upholstery materials in tones of green with a touch of red in the pattern. The red was repeated in the sateen lining. The sketch gives all the dimensions and shows how the lining and the outside part were made. A coat hanger was cut down to measure 12 inches from end to end and was placed between the lining and the outside; these being stitched together around the top, as illustrated.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

Ceylon, Africa and tropical America are expected to provide the U. S. with 54,000 long tons of crude rubber during 1943. In 1939, it is estimated, 499,473 long tons of crude were imported by this country.

Para, Brazil, was the first great rubber center. Founded in 1615, it became an important port for foreign trade about 1775. A hundred years later it was the rubber capital of the world.

Rubber obtained from a native wild vine in the Belgian Congo made Leopold II of Belgium wealthy during the 1890-1910 period. Plantation rubber development killed the Congo vine boom.

American Business Slow To Accept Alien Patents

In December, 1942, the Alien Property Custodian offered to American business firms the use of 40,000 alien patents and copyrights potentially worth billions of dollars, says Pathfinder.

Since then, licenses to use only 3,100 of these patents have been requested by less than 400 of the 200,000 companies in this country, although these licenses may be obtained almost without cost and on a royalty-free basis.

Motley - Center Service Solemnized In Church

Miss Betty Jo Center, daughter of Mrs. Josie Center of Fort Smith, Arkansas, and Albert Motley, U.S.N., son of Mrs. Minnie Thomas of Birmingham, Alabama, exchanged vows Sunday at noon in the Baptist church, following the morning service. Rev. P. O. Jensen officiated. Large baskets of pastel chrysanthemums decorated the altar. Mrs. Ruth Coker sang "Because," accompanied by Mrs. DeWitt Fields who also played the wedding march.

The bride was given away by her brother-in-law, Wallace J. Brewer. She chose as her costume a smoky blue fern-cloth suit with navy blue accessories. Her corsage was made of pink camellias. Mrs. Jack Baird, matron of honor, was dressed in a pale green suit and wore a corsage of talmadge roses. Jack Baird served as best man, and Thomas Bond and Leon Alexander were ushers.

A reception was held for the guests in the church parlors immediately after the ceremony. A wedding cake, topped by a miniature bride and a groom in service uniform, was cut according to tradition by the bride. Mrs. Brewer, sister of the bride, received the guests in a dark blue suit with a corsage of red roses.

Mrs. Motley, who has many friends here, has made her home for the past several years with Mr. and Mrs. Brewer. Mr. Motley has but recently returned from active service. At the end end of several weeks the young couple will leave for Bremerton, Washington, where Mr. Motley expects to be stationed for the next few months.

MORING-GRIFFIN WEDDING SERVICE

Miss Lois O'Dille Griffin, attractive daughter of Judge Lloyd E. Griffin, 3436 Voltaire st., became the bride of Lt. Walter F. Moring, U.S.M.C.R., son of Mrs. John F. Moring, of Handley, Tex., Tuesday evening at 8:30 in Point Loma Community church. The Rev. George Williams performed the ceremony before an altar banked with pink gladioli and white chrysanthemums. Max Walmer, organist, accompanied Valerie Postnikova who sang "Through the Years" and "I Love You." The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white taffeta, en train. The model features a sweetheart neckline, leg of mutton sleeves, a shirred bodice and full graceful skirt. She wore a finger-tip veil and carried an orchid centered bouquet.

Mrs. John Covey (Barbara Griffin), matron of honor, wore dusty rose taffeta, similar in design to the bride's gown. Her head-dress of matching net fell from a floral tiara.

Mrs. Jack Edwards, wearing heavenly blue taffeta, fashioned like the gown of Mrs. Covey, but without a train and Mrs. Perry DeLong in rose-rust taffeta, were the bride's other attendants. All three carried bouquets to carry out the color theme of rose, rose-rust and blue.

J. W. Percival, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, served as best man and Howard Ritter and John Covey ushered.

After the wedding a reception was held for 100 guests at the home of the bride's father. Bridal-white chrysanthemums, accented with pink gladioli, formed the decorations. The bride's cake was encircled with pink roses and gardenias.

After a short wedding trip north the couple will remain here to await Lt. Moring's orders.

Gertrude Angert has been elected president of Kathryn Farwell association of San Diego county.

Miss Ann Marie Sharpe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Sharpe, 4477 Muir ave., was claimed as bride by Calvin Wright Johnston, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Johnston, 4504 Cape May, in the Methodist church, Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The Rev. James Roberts read the service in the presence of a large gathering of relatives, close friends and schoolmates of the young couple.

Large baskets of white, pink and yellow chrysanthemums with blue delphinium sprays flanked the altar. Other flower arrangements especially beautiful were lavender and yellow chrysanthemums in the registry and yellow flowers on the piano, which added to the bridal atmosphere.

Miss Frances Bacon sang "Oh, Promise Me" and "Because," accompanied by Miss Madeline Boyd who also played the wedding marches.

The bride, whose father gave her in marriage, was attractively frocked in beige wool, featuring long sleeves. Her hat and accessories were navy blue and she carried a bridal bouquet of pink rose buds centered gardenias.

Mrs. Eldred Smith, matron of honor, wore a brown and white taffeta afternoon dress and a corsage of gardenias and yellow rose buds.

Paul Brown was best man and Bill Sharpe, the bride's brother, ushered..

A wedding dinner and reception followed at La Valencia hotel, La Jolla, for members of the wedding party and immediate families.

On the dining table white chrysanthemums and lighted tapers added a bridal touch to the elaborate three-tiered wedding cake. Mr. Henry Tschatter, friend and neighbor of the Sharpe family made the bride's cake, decorated with pink rose buds and topped with wedding ring and bells, which was a masterpiece.

Mrs. Sharpe received wearing a blue suit with beige hat and pink-beige blouse. Her corsage was red roses. Mrs. Johnston chose blue crepe with hat and coat of grey, and wore rose-colored roses.

The young couple left immediately for Hollywood, on a wedding trip to see radio city and other interesting spots. For traveling the bride wore a top coat of beige wool trimmed with black velvet collar and cuffs. Her corsage was the gardenias from her bridal bouquet, and accessories were black.

Both Mr. Johnston and the bride were born in Ocean Beach, attended the elementary school and were graduated by Pt. Loma high school.

Mrs. Johnston is employed at Marston's and Mr. Johnston, since his graduation in June '42, has been with the Radio Sound laboratory on Pt. Loma. The young couple will reside temporarily at 4504 Cape May ave.

Out-of-town guests at the wedding were the bride's aunt, Mrs. James Fitzgerald of Long Beach, and Mrs. Earl Holbrook of San Diego..
